Graduate School POLICY: Honors Convocation, Honors at Graduation

A. Purpose & Scope
To describe the process and procedures for recognition of graduate students at Honors Convocation and Graduation

B. Definition(s)

C. Policy
Honors Convocation - California University rewards academic excellence on the part of degree-seeking graduate students by honoring Presidential Scholars at an annual Honors Convocation each Spring semester. Graduate School Presidential Scholars must possess a GPA of 3.75 or above and have earned 24 credits toward their degree and major after the Fall semester. Both full- and part-time graduate students are eligible to be named Presidential Scholars.

Honors at Graduation - Honors cords are given to graduate students who complete their program with a cumulative minimum 3.75 GPA based on the semester prior to graduation. Graduate students will not be recognized in the Commencement program as receiving honors.
